

For Immediate Release

ARPAST – The Arkansas Paranormal and Anomalous Studies Team, is proud to announce the formation of its first satellite group, NEARPAST. Under the guidance of veteran paranormal investigators John May and Paul and Shelley Gervasi , NEARPAST will focus on investigating allegedly haunted locations in the northeastern region of the state of Arkansas and surrounding areas, utilizing the same stringent scientific methodology that has helped ARPAST earn the reputation as one of the largest and most respected paranormal research groups in the nation.

With over $250,000 worth of hi-tech equipment, much of it custom-designed, ARPAST stands out among other “ghost hunting” groups, including those popularized on reality television, by focusing on scientific methods to examine environmental data associated with paranormal and anomalous phenomena. ARPAST’s Founder and President Larry Flaxman is a best-selling author and popular speaker, and serves as consultant to many national research organizations.

NEARPAST is the first of many regional groups that will operate under the ARPAST banner, benefiting from the professional training and methodology of the parent organization.
